

Charlemagne commended in his 789 edict: "Let the ministers of God's altar ... collect and associate with themselves children ... that there may be schools for reading - boys."

Charlemagne attempted to reform his calendar. He incorporated the anno Domini system of dating favored by Dionysius and Bede.

Charlemagne also followed in many of his decrees a growing trend in Europe to number the days of the month in sequential order instead of using the Roman system of Kalends, Nones, and Ides.

Charlemagne tried to rename the months:
